great effort with a worthwhile result. the serial number on the m/40 s is like all the other swedish production m/40 pistols, they begin with the year of production and the number of the year, that is then followed by the production number. the production number is the same for all production and is the number of the year the production of this particular model started. the serial number on the m/40 s is like all the other swedish production m/40 pistols, they begin with the year of production and the number of the year, that is then followed by the production number. the production number is the same for all production and is the number of the year the production of this particular model started. this is an interesting pistol. the stock is made by us custom & shoot. i have seen this before but it has a "g" prefix on the left side of the receiver. the gun has the serial number "t" on the right side of the barrel. the serial number is "13000" and the last five characters are "9" and "0". the only markings on the frame are "vas" and "e2". i have never seen this marking before. the serial number on the barrel is "19". this pistol has the bergman locking system. i have the serial number on the barrel stamped in the frame and on the receiver. i have a serial number book and the serial number on the barrel and frame are identical. this may be a different pistol than the one in the article. but, i have not been able to find any information on this gun. it has been my pistol for more than 30 years. i have the holster and the sling. i have a letter from my wife with the pistol and the sling. i have fired the pistol and it will fire as long as i hold it up to my ear. the lock is good. i also have the parts and manuals that came with the gun. the gun is in good working condition. i have had the hammer taken off and repaired. the hammer is not the original and the barrel is not the original. the original barrel was removed from a colt m1911. it has a colt front sight and the original ejector rod. i have a colt original front sight in the barrel and the original ejector rod on the right side of the frame. this is an interesting pistol. i have not been able to find any information on this pistol or the markings on the barrel and frame. i would like to have this pistol repaired and i would like to sell this pistol if it is not the same pistol in the article. i would like $800.00 for it. i will include the parts and manuals. i have tried to sell it but no one has been interested. anyone that has any information on this pistol can contact me at mj123@yahoo.com or give me a call at 706-853-6304. thanks. walter g

Husqvarna Rifle Serial Numbers in the same year that the first royal privilege was granted to husqvarna, the first rifles from the factory were awarded prizes at the stockholm exhibition. it was not until the early 1770s that the factory began to produce both muzzle-loading and breech-loading rifles. these breech-loaders were used for hunting in the forests around huskvarna, and in the swedish army from 1784. the chambered in 6.355mm was the most common, and also the best performing one. the chambered in 7.7mm was often used in the army, and this is the only husqvarna rifle chambered in 7.7mm. however, the factory also produced a model 5,7mm rifle in 1786. the factory was later moved to the city of jönköping, and the city was named as the home of the factory until the new factory in huskvarna was built in the late 1800s. when the factory was moved to jönköping, it became the largest manufacturer of military firearms in the whole of sweden. the first factory in husqvarna was founded by a miller named carl johan paulsson. it was not until the spring of 1786 that he was able to obtain a license from the government to build a small factory. his first factory was located in a large barn near the town's waterfalls, and in 1789, there was a small mill building and a sawmill attached to the new factory. both of these buildings were soon replaced by a more substantial building. in 1806, the swedish government ordered that a new factory be built. the new factory was built by miller carl johan pettersson, and a sawmill was attached to the building. this was the beginning of the renowned husqvarna rifle factory. carl johan pettersson's eldest son, anders, was born in 1810. anders also became a miller, and after his father's death, he became the company's general manager. 5ec8ef588b
